President's Message:

There once was a man who lived in a two story house. The house was near a river that began to flood. As the river rose, warnings were given via radio, TV and shortwave. Large jeeps drove through the area to evacuate people. As a jeep drove by the man's house, he was told: "You are in danger. Get in the Jeep. Let us help you evacuate." "No," the man replied, "I have faith. God will take care of me."

The water continued to rise. Soon the man was on the second floor. A boat arrived at the man's house. Rescuers made every effort to convince the man to get on the boat. "No worries, I have faith," the man said. "I will be fine. God will take care of me."

The flood continued to rise. The man went to the roof to avoid the rising water. A helicopter pilot saw him on top of the roof and hovered above. The pilot tried to convince the man to grab the rope ladder dangling above his head. "No worries," said the man. "I will be fine. Yes, the flood is higher, but I have faith. God will take care of me."

The flood rose and the man drowned. At the pearly gates, the man said to God: "I had faith. You let me die." God replied: "I sent you a jeep, a boat and a helicopter. What more could I have done for you?"

I often think of this parable. For me, the story is a reminder that we are all a part of the Source of All That Is, that some call God. That my actions and your actions are all Source's actions. We are not just doing the work of Source, we are Source in action. —Rhonda Murphy
